Brief History

In the mid 70's, MacNasty, a popular local horn band, played Top 40 cover songs in the Omaha area. Most of the members were attending UNO at the time. After graduation, jobs, marriages and family happened, and the band broke up, as the original members scattered across the country with their new lives.

In 2003, Gery Illgner, the MacNasty keyboard player, decided to get a band together in Kansas City for a one night stand for a surprise birthday, which reunited 5 of the 7 original members.

That night resurrected Gery's love of music and he has been playing with "One Night Stand" in KC ever since.

10 years later, Tim Brechbill organized a MacNasty reunion gig with all 7 of the original members getting back together in Omaha, traveling from New York, California, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Kansas. Amazingly everyone had continued in some fashion with their love of music. After nearly 40 years since they last played together, and with 2 short rehearsals, things felt like the old days.

When Tim retired from Union Pacific, he was ready to get back into a horn band and coerced Gery, and Joel Edwards from the original MacNasty, and still in the Omaha area, to join him in 2018 as the heart of Heartland Boogie Band.

They are joined by 6 exceptionally talented local musicians, Larry Garnett, Rich Felt, Tim Miklas, Chris Johnson, and Nick Fili, and are having a blast playing the greatest music ever made.
